L. L. MOORE GETS TWO YEARS IN PEN

YOUNG BOY IN COURT

Owen Jackson, 15 Years Old, Pleads Guilty to Stealing Car, Gets 2 Years and Was Paroled

L. L. Moore was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary in circuit court this afternoon when he entered a plea of guilty to forging a note. Moore forged a note to the Farmers and Citizens Bank of Barnard and was arrested at Falls City, Nebr., Thursday by Sheriff Roach. Moore will be taken to the penitentiary in Jefferson City this evening by Sheriff Roach.

Owen Jackson, 15-year-old boy, living near Hopkins, pleaded guilty to stealing the car of W. A. Stickle of Gaynor City in Hopkins last Thursday night in juvenile court this afternoon. He was sentenced to two years in the reform school and was paroled because it was his first offense and on account of his age. The conditions of the parole were that the boy was to attend church and Sunday School and also that he could not stay out later than 9 o'clock at nights unless in the company of his parents.

Jackson was arrested at Savannah yesterday afternoon by Sheriff Eveans of Andrew County and was brought back to Maryville by Deputy Sheriff Atherton and W. A. Stickle. Stickle claims his car was damaged probably to the amount of about $50 and Jackson was to pay the damages. The boy's parents were in juvenile court this afternoon with the boy.

A motion for a new trial in the case of the State vs. John Henggler was overruled by Judge Dawson this afternoon. A motion in arrest of judgment was also overruled. The defendant took an appeal to the supreme court. Henggler was fined $625 by a jury in circuit court for beating up a little girl.

All of the evidence in the equity case of O. L. Mutti, et al, vs. Howard Garrett, et al, was concluded this afternoon. The case will be argued sometime in June.

BIBLE SCHOOL WILL START ON JUNE 2

CHILDREN TO RECEIVE DAILY INSTRUCTION.

IN FOUR DEPARTMENTS

Kindergarten, Primary, Junior and Intermediate Classes Will Be Organized—Is Annual Event.

The fourth annual Daily Vacation Bible School of Maryville will begin on June 2 and last during the entire month. It will meet as usual in the High School building.

This Vacation Bible School is for boys and girls from 4 to 14 years of age. It is organized into four departments, Kindergarten, for the little folks who have not been to day school yet; Primary, for those in the first, second and third grades; Junior, for those in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades; and Intermediate for those in the seventh and eighth grades and first year High School. These departments will hold separate assemblies and conduct their work separately.

The school meets from 9 in the morning until 11:30 o'clock on every day except Saturday and Sunday. The enrollment fee will be $1.00 for the term. In other years many scholarships have been given for boys and girls who could not afford to come otherwise. Many who have not children in the age served by the Vacation Bible School have sent others' boys and girls. The enrollment fees are never adequate to operate the school and scholarships are needed. This year shares of $1.00 and $5.00 will be offered and it is hoped that many will become shareholders in the D. V. B. S. and in this religious training of the children of Maryville. Miss Hazel Sheridan at the First National Bank is the treasurer of the D. V. B. S. and will receive contributions.

The work of the D. V. B. S. consists of the learning of the great hymns of the church, memory work in the Bible, Bible study, missionary stories, calesthenics and marching, and handwork of various sorts. This year the staff of teachers will be unusually efficient, with the majority experienced teachers not only in church and Sunday Schools, but in the public schools as well.

The present set up of department heads includes Mrs. Leonard Bosch, Miss Margaret Louise Hosmer, Mrs. C. P. Fryer, Mrs. Fred Wagner. Ferd Masters will be in charge of the boys' craft work. The Rev. S. P. Allison is in general charge. These officers of the D. V. B. S. are to meet today to complete the work of naming the other workers, and to work out in full the curriculum and program for the entire school.

This school is conducted by all the Protestant churches of Maryville for all the children of Maryville and vicinity between the ages of 4 and 14. The churches work through the Nodaway County Council of Religious Education, which has a committee in charge of the D. V. B. S. Rev. S. P. Allison is the chairman, C. C. Leeson, represents the Methodist Church, North; T. H. Leet the Methodist Church, South; Miss Eva Davis, the Baptist Church; G. B. Roseberry the Christian Church, and Miss Irene Teagarden the Presbyterian Church. All the ministers are also members of the committee.

Is Sermon Subject for Tomorrow Evening at Presbyterian Church—Especially Timely Discussion.

"The Conquest of War" is the sermon subject of the Rev. S. P. Allison, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, for the service tomorrow evening.

In commenting on this subject, the Reverend Mr. Allison said that Memorial Day is probably the most suitable time of any to consider the ending of war, for no other group so well know the horrors and the futility of war as those who have themselves been through it. The Sunday evening sermon will consider especially the contribution of Christianity toward making possible world peace.

Italy Ready to Aid in Bringing Peace

Says King Victor Emmanuel III, in Speech From Throne, In Opening Session of Parliament.

Rome, May 24.—King Victor Emmanuel III, in a speech from a throne today, in opening the session of the new Parliament, promised efforts by the government to improve the conditions of the workers.

Referring to armament and reparations, the King said:

"Italy cannot remain disarmed among the nations that are armed. Italy is ready to help reach an equitable solution or reparations. She is disposed to make sacrifices to guarantee the peace of Europe, provided her own vital interests are safely guarded.

"The Italian national budget now has been balanced. If the economic improvement is maintained, gradual reduction of taxes will be possible."

TWO WORLD COURT PLANS SUBMITTED

MAJORITY OF COMMITTEE INDORSES PEPPER PROPOSAL

TAX BILL OVER VETO

Sufficient Votes are Assured in Both House and Senate—Farm Relief Measure Up Next Week

Washington, May 24—Two plans for America's participation in the permanent court of international justice were recommended to the Senate today by the Senate foreign relations committee.

A majority of the committee indorsed the Pepper plan, opposed by President Coolidge, which would divorce the court from the League of Nations before the United States joined.

The Democratic minority recommended the Swanson plan for American participation under the reservation laid down by Secretary Hughes. This plan has been indorsed by the President.

Washington, May 24—Whether the tax reduction bill as finally agreed to by Congress is an improvement over the present revenue law which is capable of creating an annual 300 million dollar surplus for the government, has been made the issue by President Coolidge in deciding whether he will sign or veto it.

The conference report on the compromise bill, carrying the Simmons-Longworth income tax rates, was expected to be called up in the Senate today, with very brief debate, if any. The report then goes to the House where action likewise is expected to be immediate.

If Coolidge vetoes the bill, leaders of both parties believe there will be ample votes in both houses to pass it over that veto.

Washington, May 24.—Farm relief legislation—the McNary-Haugen bill—was scheduled to be laid aside in the House today while a week is consumed in acting on other matters.

The tax reduction conference report is scheduled for adoption by the House Monday. The legislative appropriation bills and an urgent deficiency bill, providing money for making effective the soldier bonus will be considered Tuesday and Thursday. The 150 million dollar bill for new naval construction will occupy the House Wednesday.

The farm relief bill is to be given consideration although it may require three or four days to complete it. This is in deference to the wishes of Congressmen in agricultural districts, who believe that some legislation to help the wheat and other farmers is urgent.

EIGHT ARE KILLED IN MISSOURI STORM

GREAT PROPERTY LOSS

"Twister" Sweeps Through Southeast Missouri and Southern Illinois Last Night and Early Today

HARVE ENGLAND.

HYDROGRAPHIC WORK.

Few people realize the scope of work of the hydrographic offices of nations in mapping out seacourses and dangerous obstacles to navigation. The American hydrographic office has a score of vessels constantly at work recording every flux of currents and shifting of shoals, while the British admiralty has no less than eight sloops and 700 men constantly at work.

Hydrographic work does not lack in thrills. Instances have been recorded where whole islands have disappeared over night, due, douotless, to submarine disturbances or the caving in or settling of the earth's crust in the immediate vicinity of the islands. Falcton island, near Tongas, has been quite persistent in its disappearances. It was first observed in 1885. Shortly afterwards it vanished from the surface of the sea, only to reappear again, and later to vanish for the second time, and, apparently, for good.

Will some adventurous hydrographic man some day bring us traces of lost Atlantis? It is not at all improbable. While we are told that most of the undersea flux going on is in the bed of the Pacific, it is not at all unlikely that similar shiftings, though perhaps on a smaller scale, are going on in the bed of the Atlantic which some time will culminate in a portion of that fabled lost continent showing itself above the surface and giving us indisputable evidence of the golden land where armour was made of precious metals and horses' hoofs were studded in gems.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROBLEM.

President Coolidge has a hard proposition before him. He has taken a sound position that the Government can not reduce taxation and increase expenditures at the same time. Congress has passed a bill to reduce taxes, many of them the little irritating and aggravating taxes generally known as "nuisance taxes." Congress has also passed a bill calling for an expenditure of more than 2 billion dollars for soldiers' bonuses. If the claim is sound that the government can not reduce expenditures and increase them at the same time, it is difficult to see how taxes, which are the government's income, can be reduced and payments increased.

Congress and the President both want to be elected again this year, and there is the rub. Congress is bent on taking care of its own hide and has passed the buck to the President. Since the people have been promised a reduction in taxation, it would probably be the President's best move to accept the situation whether it is possible or impossible and leave the matter of raising revenue to pay the bonuses up to the next Congress. If they have to again levy higher taxes, that will be their grief and not his.

TALKATIVE AMERICA.

America is a talkative country, and when it wants to talk it wants to talk in a hurry, which is a good thing.

This is indicated by figures compiled by the Department of Commerce showing that there was an increase of 2,631,875 telephones in the country during the past five years. The total now stands at 14,347,000. The greatest sectional gains were in New England and the Middle Atlantic states, while Florida had the greatest state gain and New Jersey was second.

The telephone has brought cities far removed into closer and more intimate contact more so than any other instrument, with the possible exception of the automobile.

Charity begins at home and in many cases never gets away from it.

Town pride and town loyalty make cities out of towns but fighting among citizens don't make anything but dull times and dead towns.

Lightning causes 12 million dollars worth of fires in this country each year while men cause fires amounting to fifty times 12 million. And yet, everybody is afraid of lightning and very few worry about matches and other man made hazards.

Every one of these rains slows up business a little now but makes more of it in future. They are supplying much needed moisture to the crops and making grass, oats and corn.

Fifty Years Ago

(Taken from the Nodaway Democrat May 21, 1874.).

Arrangements are being made for a Fourth of July celebration by the Grange in the neighborhood of Joseph Updegraff. Some leading Grange speakers will be invited to deliver speeches.

On Saturday last, we paid a visit to Quitman, and was well pleased with the evidences of thrift and prosperity that came under our observation on the route. The fall wheat is splendid, nearly all the corn has been planted, and the prospects for fruit are good. We do not believe that Nodaway County can boast of a better section of country than that between Maryville and Quitman.

The Andrew County Republican of last week says that "during the showers of last Saturday night, while Mrs. Garvin, wife of Colvin Garvin, in Rochester Township, was placing a stick of wood upon the fire in the fireplace, a bolt of lightning passed down the lightning rod, and through a hole in the chimney, striking Mrs. Garvin on the right hand, passing over her arm, across her sheulders and down her left side. She was severely stunned—remaining insensible for two hours. Three children were also shocked, but recovered."

H. M. Jackson, Esq., city attorney, has decided that, under the ordinances, no more wooden buildings can be moved around inside the fire limits. This, in our judgment, is right, as allowing wooden buildings to be moved from place to place often endangers valuable property.

The True Story of Woodrow Wilson

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

CHAPTER XXIX.

Why Colonel House and Woodrow Wilson Separated.

There was never a break between Colonel House and President Wilson. Strictly speaking it was a coolness and a separation—in contrast with the warm friendship and intimacy of nearly eight years. After leaving the White House Woodrow Wilson never saw Colonel House again.

Like all great men Mr. Wilson had a certain weakness and one was a peculiar susceptibility to what traditionally is known as "court gossip" and what in the parlance of an American democracy is sometimes defined as "tattle." Prejudices were conveyed to him by those who tried to sway his judgment and Mr. Wilson unconsciously absorbed those prejudices and dropped many of his friends without even giving them an opportunity to present their side of a controversy.

The experience of President Wilson with Colonel House is probably unprecedented in all history. It has about it an air of mystery as well as tragedy. No man ever served another with the same zeal and with the same indifference to reward as did Colonel E. M. House. His discharge from the President's confidence occurred in Paris. It was as much a shock to Colonel House himself as it was to all who had followed the Damon and Pythias relationship which had sprung up between the two men.

Colonel House occupied a position so extraordinary and yet so influential with the President that he was the object of much envy. He had gone to Europe in advance of the President and had been dealing with allied statesmen so long that he felt he knew their maneuvers and could guide the President in handling them. When Mr. Wilson reached Paris he found Colonel House in close contact with the entire situation. The allied statesmen continued to deal with the Colonel in the hope that he might influence President Wilson. Instead of occupying, therefore, a position subordinate to the President he really became an intermediary between the President, on the one hand, and the allied statesmen on the other. The headquarters of the American Peace Commission were at the Hotel Crillon where Colonel House held forth. The other members of the Peace Mission saw him occasionally but for the most part there were no meetings of the entire peace delegation at which any action was taken except to ratify conclusions already reached in conference either by the President or Colonel House. Relatives of Colonel House were attached to his staff. The unique position of the Colonel developed the usual antipathy so that among the Americans in and about the American Peace Mission there were two groups—those who were anti-House and those who were for him. Those who opposed did not hesitate to spread the word which eventually reached the President that Colonel House had set up a sort of counter-establishment at the Hotel Crillon. One day the President happened in at the Crillon to see Colonel House who talked with him a few minutes and excused himself in order to receive Premier Clemenceau. Incidents of this kind was not lost upon those who sought to give the impression that the Colonel was trying to Lord it over his chief.

Newspapers articles began to appear telling that the real power in the American Peace Delegation was Colonel House. Some of these stories caught the eye of Mrs. Wilson who did not fail to take a deep interest in everything that affected her husband and particularly those things in which she deemed that Mr. Wilson's interests were being subordinated. One day the Colonel went to the House where the President and Mrs. Wilson lived during the peace conference. As was his custom the Colonel stopped to chat for a few moments with Mrs. Wilson. The Colonel was in high spirits feeling that the peace conference was proceeding to a successful conclusion. He was particularly jubilant that day because of the apparent conversion of an influential section of the British press to the support of Mr. Wilson. The Colonel told Mrs. Wilson that one of the most prominent London editors had become so impressed with the American viewpoint that he could count on effective editorial aid from that quarter. The Colonel remarked that his sole object was to help make the whole negotiation a success so that it would rebound to the credit of his chief, Woodrow Wilson.

At this point Mrs. Wilson drew forth a clipping from the London newspaper in question and pointed to an article of laudatory character which gave Colonel House the credit for the many things accomplished in the American peace mission, and which pointed out that if Mr. Wilson would let the Colonel alone there would be an earlier agreement and a much better feeling all around.

Mrs. Wilson asked Colonel House for an explanation of that article which had appeared in a newspaper edited by his friend. Her inquiry inferred he had inspired the article, the inference being that he had exploited himself instead of the President. The Colonel is not given to outbursts of indignation but took the accusation quietly. Just then the President asked for the Colonel and their conference began.

After that episode the Colonel did not return to the Wilson home but conducted all his conferences with the President at the Hotel Crillon. Gossip had it that he never explained the newspaper article to Mrs. Wilson. Nor was there anything to explain. He was not responsible for the speculative comments of the newspapers. The Colonel was cut to the quick by the coolness which Mrs. Wilson had shown and which the President himself developed immediately afterward. Inside the American Peace Mission it became known that there had been a separation. The relations between the President and Colonel House were formal thereafter. They were simply those conferences which official business required. Undoubtedly the President absorbed Mrs. Wilson's viewpoint which together with the attacks that had been made on Colonel House for his alleged compromises served to end the warmth of the relationship between these two statesmen.

There is another phase of the episode which played an important part. Colonel House was naturally of a conciliatory disposition. He was always trying to keep the allied statesmen in good humor and while he had no power to commit the American Peace Mission to concessions he was trying constantly to bring about an early peace and a series of agreements which would make all the powers feel more kindly toward the treaty itself as well as the League of Nations. His policy may have been a mistaken one, his concessions may have been too numerous but certain it is they did not commit Mr. Wilson to any acceptance of suggestions the Colonel was making.

Mr. Wilson was warned shortly after he arrived in Paris that Colonel House had made arrangements with the various allied statesmen which would make it difficult for the President to make peace. The criticism came in the form of a letter from a prominent New York editor who had been in Paris, an editor whom Mr. Wilson held in high esteem. Thus the campaign against Colonel House began immediately after the armistice. It succeeded in the early spring of the following year. The man who for so many years had worked tirelessly and without compensation of any sort for the United States government, was cast adrift by Mr. Wilson. The defenders of President Wilson in this controversy will say no doubt that the activities of Colonel House were deserving of the rebuke that they received. It was natural that the Colonel who had been given so much power should be the victim of his own efforts to please Woodrow Wilson and at the same time make a practical peace. The document in the records may prove that had President Wilson followed Colonel House's advice he would have secured more prestige for the Versailles treaty but this will always be a moot point because it involves the hypothetical and there were so many circumstances interrelated in Paris that no clear judgment as to the merits of this particular phase of the controversy will ever be formed. For Mr. Wilson carried to his grave the secret of his separation from Colonel House. Messages were exchanged of a courteous nature after the President became an invalid but the old association was never re-established. Indeed at the funeral of Woodrow Wilson, Colonel House was not even invited to sit in mourning in the home on "S Street" where his chieftain lay dead.

(Monday's chapter tells why Wilson broke with Lansing and how the government functioned without an active President.).

WAR RESOLUTION IS CAUSE FOR BATTLE

SAYS DR. C. C. JAMES IN COMMUNICATION TODAY.

FIRST CLASS ORATORY

Resolution Is Passed Commending Work of Roy Haynes as Prohibition Enforcement Official.

The following letter from Dr. C. C. James, a delegates at the General Conference of the Methodist Church, was received by the Democrat Forum today:

Well, the General Conference still moves on like a well regulated clock. Each day finds its full quota of tasks to be achieved. There is always a splendid chance to get a laugh out of the General Conference at your expense, and they surely know how to laugh.

One of the liveliest sessions was when the war resolution as it is called was presented. It seemed as tho war had really commenced. The oratory was of first class type, and some eloquent gestures were indulged by some of the speaking brethern. They finally became disgusted with the whole thing and turned it over to a committee of ten, who are to bring in a report soon. Then I suppose some oratory will be thrown to the wings of the wind.

They passed a new law that means, that a bishop cannot live in one area in the United States for more than eight years. So that quite a number of bishops are due to move and there is much conjecture as to where they will be sent. The Missouri Conference will now be in the Kansas City area, the St. Louis and Wichita areas have been merged into the Kansas City area. Do not know at this writing who will be our bishop.

The General Conference has asked that Congress pass a federal law on child labor question, so that our childhood shall not be deformed, or ruined before it grows up.

A resolution was passed commending Roy Haynes as commissioner to enforce the 18th amendment, in his very difficult situation.

Some of the debates on the question of the report of the Episcopal Committee on matter of Episcopal residences was of high order. No man had better indulge in these debates unless he is a clear thinker and good parlimentarian.

The elections for Bishops commenced yesterday. The bishops appointed sixteen tellers, who distribute and receive the ballots and then take up their hats, overcoats and in charge of some of the secretaries, go out to count the ballots. The commission on General Conference entertainment have to see that their meals are sent to them while counting the ballots, just about the same as a jury in charge of a sheriff, while fighting their way from the darkness of confused evidence to the dawn of a verdict. The highest votes on first ballot were for Rev. Ralph A. Ward, 310, Rev. Merton, S. Rice, 288, Rev. Merle Smith, 267, Rev. E. Stanley Jones, 213, Rev. D. D. Forsyth, 204, and many others too numerous to take your time to mention. Of these I have mentioned, all but Rev. Ward, declined to be elected declaring they loved the pastorate better. That broke up several slates. Dr. Gray, who was pastor at Grand Avenue Church, Kansas City, also withdrew from the race.

We are to have a communion service next Sunday morning commencing at 7:00 a. m. and the newly elected bishops will be consecrated as Bishops in the afternoon. So we are expecting a full day of service.

The auditorium is filled at all the forenoon sessions and they are especially enthusiastic when the debates are going on. You ought to come before it adjourns and take it in.

Well the bishops of the M. E. Church South have called a General Conference session for some time in July to vote on the question of unification.

C. C. JAMES.

PHELAN SELECTED TO NAME M'ADOO

EX-SENATOR FROM CALIFORNIA WILL NOMINATE M'ADOO

CONDUCTING OWN FIGHT

McAdoo Confers With Several Senators in Washington; Becoming More Formidable

By Charles G. Ross in St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Washington, May 24.—There is special significance in the announcement by McAdoo headquarters here that the former Secretary of the Treasury will be placed in nomination at the Democratic national convention by former Senator James D. Phelan of California. Phelan is a Catholic.

His selection obviously is part of an effort to erase a widespread impression that McAdoo is the "klan candidate." It indicates also that the McAdoo adherents are seeking to thwart the announced determination of the Underwood supporters to make the klan a dominant issue in the convention.

Underwood will be placed in nomination by Gov. Brandon of Alabama, the first in the roll call of the states. He will demand the adoption of a plank expressing unqualified opposition to the klan.

Arizona, second in the list of states, probably will yield to California, thus permitting Phelan to make an almost immediate reply to the inferential chargt that McAdoo's candidacy is too closely linked with klan support.

McAdoo's friends believe that the choice of Phelan as his first oratorical sponsor in the convention is a 10-strike. It does, indeed, look like excellent strategy. It is a fresh indication of the political shrewdness with which the McAdoo movement is being directed and constitutes another warning to those of his opponents who believe that his candidacy will be easily disposed of.

Confers With Senators.

McAdoo held conferences here yesterday and Tuesday with numerous leading Democrats of the House and Senate, including Senator Harrison of Mississippi, who will be the temporary chairman and "keynote" speaker of the convention, Senator Ralstron of Indiana, Senators Glass and Swanson of Virginia and Senator Pittman of Nevada.

Conducting Own Fight

There is no doubt that McAdoo, in the last few weeks, has become a more formidable factor in the race than seemed possible immediately after the oil disclosures. His followers profess the greatest confidence that he will be nominated and elected.

McAdoo is personally directing the fight and will continue to do so till the nomination has been made. During the convention he will direct the strategy of his followers on the floor. The McAdoo forces assert that to date he has 420 delegates instructed, pledged or favorable to him, and that at least 100 more are in sight.

Miss Ruby Ewing of Grant City came yesterday to be the guest of Mrs. Clarence Vogt.

News that affects you most

You may be entertained by news of the Yanks and the Giants, but you aren't vitally interested unless you have money at stake; and the shifting of European boundaries doesn't affect you half so much as the softness of your mattress, the comfort of your shoes, what you ate for breakfast, how much your last hat cost.

That's why advertising news deserves as much attention as sporting or international news. The advertisements keep you informed of all the latest comforts and conveniences that can make your daily living more delightful. They tell where to secure the best, how to save money, how to lessen work, have a better home, better food, better clothes, more luxuries.

You can't keep up with the daily news—the kind that affects you most — unless you read the advertisements.

They are the cronometers of local time. You'll find it highly profitable to adjust your living by them.

Advertisements are the only news that really save you money—read them all.

The Right Way!

There's no better method of reaching the people than thru the Want Ads. Everybody reads them, for they are news to those who seek something and likewise news to those having something to sell.

Use the Want Ads more—for any purpose—and we are satisfied that you will be gratified by the results.

Wayne Griggs, son of M. L. Griggs, shot himself in the right leg Thursday morning about 9:30, with a sawed off .22 rifle. The pistol was in the scabbard when it was accidently discharged. The accident occurred in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. How to Avoid Common Ailments of Baby Chicks

By EARL M. WHITNEY

While diseases and parasites are as ready as ever to get in their deadly work, the intelligent effort of experts in the industry has built up preventive measures which greatly minimize the danger from these sources. And even when disease and parasites do gain foothold, prompt action with the various dependable remedies now obtainable has been found to greatly reduce losses. That is proven in the fact that chick mortality in proportion to the immense increase in the numbers that are being hatched today, shows a very substantial decline.

In the early years of the poultry industry's growth, diseases and parasites were the greatest hindrances to success because of lack of knowledge as to the best means of combating them. In the present day they are hindrances only because of carelessness, neglect and improper management.

Knowledge may now be had of definite methods by which they may be prevented and overcome, and, except in cases of contagion, there no longer exists excuse for the high mortality of the past. In the early days, the best methods were crude to say the least, when compared to the efficient, scientific methods of the present time.

Sanitation Greatest Prevention.

Sanitation is the best means of prevention. Lice and mites and disease germs cannot exist where a good poultry disinfectant is used regularly and plentifully and where a lice salve or powder is conscientiously applied. The chicks' surroundings must be clean and sanitary. This includes everything from drinking founts and feed hoppers to hovers and brooding houses. It goes even farther than this—back to the parent stock. Was it healthy, vigorous and strong?

There are some common ailments of chicks, however, that require considerable caution to overcome. Take gapes for example. Chicks may acquire gapes through ranging over infected ground or by drinking contaminated drinking water. The gape worm sucks the blood from the interior walls of the wind pipe and unless prompt action is taken strangulation results. The symptoms, however, are quickly and easily recognized—a frequent gaping, coughing, discharge of mucus and tiny little worms from the throat.

Here again, sanitation plays an important part. First isolate chicks so afflicted, as others may take the worms from them. Next disinfect thoroughly and provide fresh range. Treat gapey chicks with a dependable compound for this purpose, which can be purchased from your druggist or poultry supply dealer.

Other common ailments of chicks are indigestion and leg weakness, both of which are most frequently caused by improper feeding. In the case of indigestion, bowel trouble frequently results and a general listlessness is apparent. The feeding of a quality, commercial chick food should prevent this trouble, providing brooding conditions are right. The same method of prevention applies to leg weakness. The chick food contains good bone-building material that should eliminate this condition entirely when proper exercise is assured.

Now comes the most dreaded affliction of all—white diarrhea. It is caused by bacteria which may be transmitted from the parent stock or from chick to chick. If allowed to gain headway, badly affected chicks should be killed and burned. The disease is extremely infectious and all cases, no matter how slight, should be isolated at once and the entire quarters thoroughly disinfected. A good white diarrhea remedy should be dissolved in the drinking water and administered continuously until all signs of contagion are past.

Many slightly affected chicks are saved in this way, but it is advisable to play safe to the extent of never using them for breeding purposes. The signs of white diarrhea are unmistakable. The chick contracts a pasty condition behind, which is white or creamy in color. It carries itself much in the manner of an older bird in the first stages of cholera. This disease is on the decrease and it is predicted that science will eventually have it under control. Preventive measures have already contributed much toward its eradication.

Don't Take Chances With Homemade Remedies.

Reliable ready-mixed poultry remedies may be secured from your local poultry supply dealer or druggist. The writer's advice is not to take any chances on preparing homemade remedies. Unless you are an expert you may make some slight error in mixing the various ingredients that will prove costly. It is far better to place the responsibility upon a reputable manufacturer. You would not think of trying to duplicate a prescription given to you by your physician. No, indeed. You would go back to the expert druggist who first filled it. One's instinct of self preservation insists upon that. Apply the same reasoning to the case of the chicks.

Let the experts of the industry who have devoted a lifetime of study to disease problems supply the remedy. That is the safe procedure. Take, for example, the experimental work that is being carried on today. New developments are coming fast. Better methods of combating disease are being brought to light. That is one of the services that an institution such as the Pratt Poultry institute of Philadelphia performs.

At the Pratt Experimental station a corps of experts are working day in and day out upon the very problems discussed here. Bulletins concerning results are issued from time to time. These may be obtained without cost. It is educational work of this nature that is helping to build up the poultry industry to a condition of success unequaled by any other industry.

Back to Farm Movement Is On

State Board of Agriculture Mails Blanks to School District Clerks To Find Out Definitely

Jefferson City, May 24—Officials of the State Board of Agriculture believe that the "farm to city" movement is ending and that the hundreds of persons who left Missouri farms to work in the cities are starting to return to the farms. It was stated at the department today that the actual condition of the movement is not definitely known, but that blanks for a special farmhouse inquiry were mailed to the several thousand clerks of school districts of Missouri for the purpose of obtaining a complete survey on farm population.

The clerks make a farm-to-farm canvass in their districts to determine how many persons have left the farms and to enumerate those that have returned. There is much discussion of the shortage of farm labor in the state, together with reports that there are many farm homes vacant and the census is being taken for the purpose of giving direct information on the situation, it was said.

The school clerks are asked to get the data on thirteen different phases of the question as follows:

Number of vacant houses in each school district, now.

Number of farm houses in each school district.

Number of married men leaving each school district in last year.

Number of single men leaving each district in last year.

Number of married men coming into districts in last year.

Number of single men coming into districts in last year.

Number of farm hands over fifteen years of age hired in districts.

Number of farm hands over fifteen years old usually in district.

Which do farmers prefer, married men or single men?

To what kinds of work did men leaving districts go? Why did they leave?

Are more single men leaving farm than married men with families? Has this movement ended ?

G. O. P. "NORMALCY" TO OIL MEN ONLY

BUT 70 CENT CORN IS MIDDLE WEST "PRIZE"

NOW FACING DISASTER

"Grand Oil Party' Hits Slump in Agricultural States—Number of Leading Democratic Candidates

By Wallace Bassford

Washington, D. C. May 24—Republican speakers in and out of Congress have ceased to point with pride to the achievements of the Republican party, but are dwelling on the character of their Chief Executive. In this they are in the position of that Biblical character who leaned upon a reed. In private conversation they make small effort to conceal their feeling that the only question remaining in their minds is as to the size of the disaster which they are facing. There is much significance in the fact that no leader in the conservative wing of the party made any effort to contest for the nomination with Coolidge. Observers in politics with experience of many years see little in the fact that the President won easily in the primaries over Johnson, for the latter is looked upon by the average Republican politician as a wild-eyed Western radical possessed of little real political acumen. In support of this view they point to the fact that Johnson was offered the vice presidential nomination in 1920 as a sop to the Westerners, and refused it with scorn. Had he accepted he would now be in possession of the prize for which he has but recently so vainly struggled. His only reason for this struggle, it might be added, was that he thought a Western Progressive would come nearer election than an Eastern Reactionary. No member of the Conservative wing of the party has been able to visualize sufficient chance of victory in November to cause him to tear his clothes for the nomination. As Taft viewed it in 1912, Coolidge probably views it now—that disaster is ahead, but he must face the music. Speaking of Johnson's refusal of the vice presidency in 1920 recalls the fury of Roosevelt in 1896 when Platt, Quay and other bosses bucked and gagged him and made him take second place, with the result that he spent seven years in the White House. All of which demonstrates that even gentlemen who regard themselves as Presidential timber do not possess infallible judgment.

If the Republican nomination is going begging, it is quite otherwise in the Democratic camp, where McAdoo, Smith and Underwood are out on the fighting lines daily and nightly, with Ralston, Glass, Cummings, Davis, Cox, Ritchie and Silzer all hoping for the lightning. And yet the winner may not even be among these, for it has been demonstrated that one of the most difficult tasks in all the world is to get two-thirds of a Democratic National Convention to see things the same way. In New York and Missouri there are two eminent Democrats who have been placed in a peculiar position, but one which yet has its possibilities. Senator Copeland has hanging in his office a large picture of Governor Al Smith, while the Senator slips out here and there and makes good speeches for Al. And yet there are those who think Copeland himself may be dragged into the Presidential fight if his candidate should fail to make the goal. He and Smith were elected in November, 1922, Copeland carrying New York State by almost 300,000 and leading his ticket in numerous counties of the State. In Missouri former Governor Gardner is elected a delegate at large instructed for McAdoo, but if the latter fails to climb the riffle, why shouldn't Bre'r Gardner aspire to high honors—if not the Presidency, then perhaps second place? And events have demonstrated that in these perilous times even second place isn't so bad, particularly with the Democratic party in high feather and practising its crowing voice for the November concert. Democrats have always liked a horse race, and everything indicates that they will get their fill of it next month at the New York nomination. If candidates are selected who are not objectionable for one reason or another to a large section of the party, and the platform made with sanity, there is no reason for defeat in November.

Why it's True Blue

THE Oakland Six is true blue because it was designed with one very definite purpose in mind—to make it the finest light six in its class. Take Oakland closed cars for example. Here are real automobiles. They are true blue because their distinctive Fisher-built bodies are real closed car bodies—with no makeshifts nor compromises entering into their construction or appointments.

Oakland's Six-Cylinder Smoothness Means Greater Closed-Car Comfort

The Oakland engine is true blue because in it the natural advantages of a "Six" have been developed to a remarkable degree.

There is freedom from annoying vibration, which is essential to complete closed-car satisfaction; there is extreme flexibility which makes gear changing rarely necessary; there is a surprising ability to respond to unusual demands quickly and without fuss—all of which qualities you will surely seek in selecting your next closed-car.

Then there are four-wheel brakes (you certainly should not buy a car without this proved essential); exclusive centralized controls on the steering wheel; a special body finish which retains its lustre indefinitely, and a dozen other features.

Isn't it true that the problem of choosing the right car is merely a matter of getting the most and the best for your money? Examine the True Blue Oakland Six. Drive it yourself. We welcome frank comparisons.
